Saluting Our Olympic-Class Housekeepers

By Dr. Richard Kelley

Over the next two weeks, Outrigger and OHANA are celebrating an extended International Housekeepers Week (which is formally just the week now ending, September 9-15) and honoring our Housekeepers around the Pacific. We are proudly recognizing our Housekeeping staff and thanking them for everything they do to keep our rooms and public areas looking as great as they do.

Although they work quietly, far from the limelight, our Housekeepers do a magnificent job. They perform their duties flawlessly around the clock, every day of the week, throughout the year, even on Christmas Day. Using the slang of today’s Internet world, we can count on them “24/7/365” – and they always turn in a champion performance.

Regular readers of Saturday Briefing are probably aware that I have a special place in my heart for the Housekeeping staff. My first job in the hospitality industry was washing and folding towels along with my sisters, Jean and Pat, in the housekeeping shed behind our parents’ Islander Hotel on Seaside Avenue in Waikiki.

Readers probably also know that during Housekeepers Week, I often seek a metaphor to describe and capture the unique role that Housekeepers play in the success of our hotels.

This year, I had a couple of choices. In this election season in the U.S., I briefly thought about comparing them to politicians. There’s a lot of talk about “change” in politics today. And yes, our Housekeepers change the linen in our rooms, and they will always get my vote. However, a political metaphor did not seem quite right.

Then with the London Olympics fresh in our memories, I turned to athletics as a good way to portray the accomplishments of our gold-medal Housekeeping team.

Last month, it was inspiring to see the top athletes from 205 nations enter the stadium in the opening ceremonies of the Olympics. In the days that followed, we were amazed by their displays of endurance, skill and grace.

To me, the most incredible performance was that of Michael Phelps, the 27-year old American swimmer who won four gold medals and two silver medals. In three Olympics spanning 12 years, he has won the most medals – 22, 18 of them gold! – and is the most decorated Olympian in any sport, ever!

Missy Franklin, just 17-years old, had a fantastic performance in her first Olympic competition, winning four gold medals and one bronze. I introduced Missy – a neighbor of ours when she was a toddler – to our ‘ohana in a previous edition of Saturday Briefing.

The qualities of Olympic champions like Michael and Missy are strikingly similar to those I find in the members of the Outrigger and OHANA Housekeeping teams. Let’s look at some of these attributes:

Dedication and Strong Work Ethic. No less than Olympic athletes, Outrigger and OHANA’s Housekeepers are dedicated, with a work ethic that drives them to accomplish their goals. An Olympian’s life is no walk in the park. They are constantly training, building their strength and honing their skills to perform flawlessly. If they let up, even for a minute, the competition is ready to overtake them.

That sounds a lot like the hotel business. The challenges are never-ending. You must constantly be on the alert and can never relax. Each day brings a new set of problems to be met and overcome. If we don’t keep up the pace, the competition is ready to sprint past us.

The Housekeeping department is the core of any hotel, and just like
Olympians, our Housekeepers can never rest on their laurels. They must be willing to work hard every day. It takes a great deal of strength and stamina to tackle up to 16 rooms a day and make them look spic and span.

World Class Skills. Olympians sharpen their skills to an astonishing degree, and so do our Housekeepers. If anyone doubts this, I challenge him or her to put on a Housekeeper’s uniform, organize a Housekeeping cart, go up to the floors, and make up rooms for an entire day. Unless you are in top shape, efficient and highly skilled, you will not get past lunch, let alone make it through the day.

Willingness to Help Others. Darryl Seibel, director of communications of the British Olympic Organization, once said, “For most Olympic and Paralympic athletes, giving back is a part of their DNA. They recognize the sacrifices that others have made to help them pursue and achieve their dreams, and many feel a strong desire to give back.”

Michael Phelps used his $1 million Speedo bonus to establish the Michael Phelps Foundation, which, among many activities, is working with Boys & Girls Clubs of America and Special Olympics International to promote healthy lifestyles in youth.

Missy Franklin, a high school student and still competing as an amateur athlete, generously donates her time to support many charitable organizations.

I see those same qualities in our Housekeepers. They are always there to assist others, and at the annual Visitor Industry Charity Walk, I typically see hundreds of our Housekeepers leading the pack and walking the extra mile to help Hawaii’s charitable organizations.

Honesty & Integrity. We expect the highest honesty and integrity of a person in the spotlight like an Olympic athlete. Similarly, we hold Housekeepers to an equally high standard. Every day, Outrigger and OHANA’s guests leave their rooms, valuables and personal effects in the care of our Housekeepers. In my 65 years in the hotel business, I have hardly ever seen that trust violated.

Sense of Humor. While Olympians are deadly serious during competition, they have a humorous side as well. Michael Phelps has shown remarkable relaxation and humor in interviews, deftly handling comments about the body-hugging Speedo suits swimmers wear these days, as well as jokes about his size-14 feet and double-jointed ankles. On NBC’s Saturday Night Live, he did a hilarious spoof of the “Michael Phelps Diet” – 12,000 calories a day!

Likewise, Missy Franklin has shown exceptional poise and humor for a person her age in numerous TV shows and personal appearances. She has graciously taken some ribbing about the colorful set of Olympic rings tattooed high on her right thigh as a symbol of international unity with other winners of Olympic medals. “AHH! All inked up. Can’t believe it! My one and only!” she tweeted, according to the New York Daily News.

Continued on page 3
Saluting Our Olympic-Class Housekeepers

Laughter and humor are also abundant in the Outrigger and OHANA Housekeeping departments, which is one of the reasons I enjoy my visits there. Just as on the playing field, in the hotel business, things do not always go exactly as planned. Arrivals and departures can be unexpectedly early or late. Sometimes the laundry delivers stained towels (or does not deliver at all). Occasionally the plumbing stops up just before the end of a shift. Whenever something like this happens, our Housekeepers, like true leaders, approach the situation with patience – and a large dose of humor. They know that no one lasts long in the hotel industry without the ability to look at the bright and funny side of everything that comes their way.

So when I think of Olympians and our Housekeepers, I see champions with remarkably similar characteristics. But when it comes to our Housekeepers, I don’t need a stopwatch or a team of judges holding up scorecards to know they’re winners.

By any measure, the Outrigger and OHANA Housekeepers are always champions, and in my book, they win gold medals every day of the year! 🥇

As always, fantastic food is plentiful!

Herbert Fernandez, Henry Rodrigues, Arlan Villanueva, Reggie Molina, Dennis Nakachi and Salvadore Antonio

Yuan Ni Lei Lin, Yeu Hing Shiu, Dr. Chuck Kelley, Florencia Silapan and Marylou Casilla

Front: Primie Marzan, Divina Garcia. Back: Hak Soon Song, Sun Kim, Siu-Lan Fong, Feng Zhen Chen, Agatha Kim and Amy Lee

More photos on page 4
Saluting Our Olympic-Class Housekeepers

Continued from page 3

Table left: Vangie Linasa, Maricon Nacario, Nola Sanchez and Loida Gamatero.
Table right: Dr. Chuck Kelley, Vicky Manalo, Lourdes Croducta and Anita Cabulena

Linda Wang, Florence Corrales, Elsa Taucus, Nina Agonoy, Virgi Asakawa, Julie Ann Rivera, Fina Salvador and Mary Cabato

Ana Marie Castel, Lina Asuncion, Myna Elcano, Julie Ann Rivera, Zeny Manganaan, Virgi Asakawa, Elsa Taucus and Icelyn Lopes

Siu-Lan Fong

The gang's all here!
Saluting Our Olympic-Class Housekeepers

Continued from page 4

Kyle Makanui, Elain Peng, King Feng Lau, Yong Xian Liang, Feng Ping Lau, Wan Ruo Kwok and Blane Andrade

Imelda Suguisan, Hong Wong and Rebecca Chen

Back: Ofelia De Jesus, Chu Ja Oh, Herminia Agbayani and Wan Wen Lui
Front: Elizabeth Aguiñaldo, Rosalina Manzano, Lorraine Sales and Agnes Mamis

Back: Yuan Zhao Tang, Edmund Villamuel, Susana Macadangdang, Marilyn Cleopas. Front: Dena Domingil, Jenny Wu, Angie Padua and Erlinda Barredo

More photos on page 6
Saluting Our Olympic-Class Housekeepers

Continued from page 5

More photos on page 7
Saluting Our Olympic-Class Housekeepers

Continued from page 6

Carmelita Cascasan, Elvira Maluyo, Hipolita Rosete, Benefrida Antonio, Esmeralda Ancheta and Ester Viloria

Estela Lau, Zhi E Liang, Zhi Mei Liang, Vicky Navasca, Hung Sheong Lau, Koon Lin Cheng and Yu Ming Liang

Marylene Lagasca, Cresilda Justo, Sigfredo Raquino, Elpidio Oviedo, Daryl Yoshimura and Jae Sil Lee

Towel-folding contest: De Xian Liu (left), Daryl Yoshimura (middle) and Edna Salvador (right)

Bed-making contest: Ester Viloria and Shao King Lui

Bamboo Dance: Edna Salvador (in red), Espie Submicay and Ester Viloria